

Frederic H. Malet

16 Seward Street • London • EC2R 7HH • United Kingdom
fredmalet@email.co.uk • cvfoundry.com/fredmalet • +44 (0)20 1234 5678

Education

- 2008–2010 M.Phil. Economics, Cambridge University.
Thesis: An Inquiry into the Effects of Resume Beautification on Lifetime Earnings.
- 2004–2008 B.S. Economics, Stanford University, magna cum laude.

Experience

- 2010–Present Junior Researcher, Bank of England, Statistics Bureau, London, England, Bank of England, Statistics Bureau, London, England.
- Bank solvency modeling and failure prediction.
 - Assist in preparing quarterly banking sector reports.
- May 2009–
Jul 2009 Internship, European Central Bank, Frankfurt, Germany, European Central Bank, Frankfurt, Germany.
- Assisted research on effects of the United States financial crisis on the Euro zone.

Publications

Malet, F.H. and Robeson, J.W. (2010). Long-Term Effects of the United States Financial Crisis on the European Banking Sector. European Economic Papers 135(2).

Technical Skills

Computer Skills SAS, Stata, Matlab.

References

James W. Robeson, Researcher, European Central Bank, jwrobeson@ecb.int.
Andrea Marien, Professor, London School of Economics, akmarien@lse.ac.uk.
Charles Whitten, Professor, Cambridge University, charles.whitten@mail.cam.ac.uk